CULVER CITY, CA

AREA OVERVIEW

Culver City

Culver City is a city in Los Angeles County, California. The city was named after its founder, Harry Culver. It is mostly surrounded by the city of Los Angeles, but also shares a border with unincorporated areas of Los Angeles County. Over the years, considering its incorporated status, over forty annexations of adjoining areas have occurred. As a result, the city now comprises approximately five square miles.

Since the 1920s, Culver City has been a significant center for motion picture and later television production, best known as the home of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. It was also the headquarters for the Hughes Aircraft Company from 1932 to 1985. National Public Radio West and Sony Pictures Entertainment now have headquarters in the city.

In the 1990s, Culver City launched a successful revitalization program in which it renovated its downtown as well as several shopping centers in the Sepulveda Boulevard corridor near Westfield Culver City. Around the same time, the relocation of Sony's motion picture operations known as Columbia Pictures. Columbia Pictures was the subsidiary of Sony that moved into the old MGM lot. This move to the former MGM studios at Washington Boulevard and Overland Avenue brought much-needed jobs to the city.

The influx of many art galleries and restaurants to the eastern part of the city, formally designated as the Culver City Art District, prompted The New York Times in 2007 to praise the new art scene and call Culver City a "nascent Chelsea."

Culver City is in high demand as it become a prime destination to live, work, dine, and shop. Neighboring Beverly Hills, Century City, and Marina del Rey, Culver City has become a focal point for culture and nightlife, while also providing clean and efficient transportation to reach them. Culver City boasts an affluent and well educated demographic base.

Culver City has made walkability a key objective in its economic development goals. The charming tree-lined streets are filled with inviting cafes, restaurants, and storefronts

AREA OVERVIEW

DOWNTOWN CULVER CITY

Downtown Culver City is a charming collection of outdoor restaurants, historic buildings, unique shops, art galleries, and nightlife. Every Tuesday, the Culver City Farmers' Market is set up to sell fresh produce and locally made items. The tree-lined streets provide a great pedestrian destination and municipal structures provide for convenient parking. The Culver Hotel is a historical flatiron building that was built in 1924. Book-ended by entertainment studios Sony Studios and The Culver Studios, Downtown Culver City is a perfect combination of small-town charm and urban living.

HELMS BAKERY DISTRICT

Today a mecca of modern furniture and design, Helms Bakery District boasts a rich and flavorful past. First opening its doors in 1931, family-owned and operated Helms Bakery supplied local residents with its fresh-baked bread delivered "Daily at Your Door" for over four decades. While no longer in the business of baked goods, the Helms Bakery building remains a cherished local landmark, recognized for its architectural significance. Award-winning restaurants include Father's Office and Lukshon, and a unique collection of design and home furnishings stores such as Room & Board, H.D. Buttercup, and Rejuvenation. The landmark building nestled in Culver City is easy to get to and located just one block east of the Metro Expo Line.
